

Pacific Alpacas Newsletter 1217

September 27th 2017

OK, OK, OK..... I get it! Some of our images might be llamas!!!!

Alright, I hear you ... apparently some of the images we use on our banners and posters are llamas and others are really old alpacas that would have ghastly fibre.

I confess, they are stock images we purchased online and I have not made any secret of the fact that I didn't know an alpaca from a turtle until last year. My excuse is that they were designed prior to my enlightenment.

Now we need to upgrade our marketing materials urgently. To do this we need high quality images of New Zealand alpacas featuring New Zealand scenery and conditions.

Can you help?

We will pay $50 in fibre credits for every image we use, online, in brochures and marketing materials and, wherever possible will give credit for the photographer.

If you have any alpaca images you think are special and good enough to use for marketing the pool's high-end duvet and other products please email them to info@pacificalpacas.com

Thanks!

Best regards,

Steve Crow
